

H0004984US

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

When a user makes a request to modify a definition of an object under control of a source control system via an external source (i.e., an import), a check is done to make sure that the object is currently checked-in. If not, then the import is not allowed. If it is checked-in, then the new definition is automatically checked-in.